

Independent BMW Service Shops Recommended by Students for Driving School Tech Inspections

Students may take their vehicle for pre-event technical inspection to any qualified mechanic, not just the ones listed below. The mechanic will complete the tech inspection part of the paperwork (blue highlighting), sign and date it and stamp it with their shop stamp. The student must complete all the other portions (yellow highlighting). Self tech is only allowed if you are a qualified mechanic.

Some shops hold a Tech Inspection Session before a driving school. Please check the chapter website to see if a shop near you is planning such an event. It could save you some money.

These independent service centers have done tech inspections in the past. Most of these shops work by appointment so be sure to call first. Let them know when you call that you are a CCA member and you need a tech inspection for a driving event. Since some of the cars at a Driving School aren't BMW's, some of these shops may specialize in something other than BMW's. Check when you call. Many (but not all) BMW dealers will also perform technical inspections. Each shop sets its own pricing – the Chapter does not guarantee any particular discount.

Students and independent shop owners can make additions or corrections to this list by sending the shop name, city and phone number to: BMWCCA_LA_Driving_School@cox.net.
